Workday navigation: finding your time off balance

Short how-to for colleagues. One to two minutes.

Steps

1. Open Workday from the colleague portal.
2. Select the Absence application on your home page.
3. Under View, select Absence Balance.
4. Set the As Of date. The default is today; set it to a future date to see what you will have accrued by then.
5. Select Run.

Reading the result

Column	What it means
Beginning balance	Hours you carried into the current year
Accrued	Hours earned so far this year
Taken	Hours already used
Scheduled	Approved future absences not yet taken
Available	Beginning plus accrued, less taken and scheduled

> Available is the number to rely on. It already subtracts absences you have booked for later in the year.

Common questions

Q. My balance looks lower than I expected.

A. Check the Scheduled column. Approved future time off is already deducted.

Q. I do not see an Absence Balance option.

A. Colleagues enrolled in Flexible PTO see PTO Balance instead. Both show the same columns.

Q. The balance has not updated after my last pay period.

A. Accrual posts two business days after payroll closes. Wait a full cycle before raising a case.

Fictional sample content created for a search demo. Not a real policy.