Hybrid and Remote Work Policy

Policy No. HR-162. Owner: Workplace Strategy. Applies to U.S. colleagues.

1. Standard Arrangement

Most colleagues work a hybrid schedule of at least three (3) days per week in an assigned Meridian office. Business areas may designate specific anchor days so that teams overlap in person. Client-facing roles may have additional on-site expectations set by the business.

2. Fully Remote Arrangements

A fully remote arrangement requires approval from the business head and a review by HR and Technology Risk. Approval is tied to the role, not to the individual, and is revisited annually. A colleague who moves to a state where Meridian is not registered to employ must notify HR before the move; a move without notice may delay payroll and benefits.

3. Work Location of Record

Your work location of record determines which state and city employment rules apply to you, including the paid sick leave provisions in HR-204. The work location of record is the office to which you are assigned, or for a fully remote colleague, the approved home work address on file in Workday. Temporarily working from another location does not change your work location of record.

> Keep your Workday address current. Benefits, tax withholding, and leave entitlements are all driven by the address on file, not by where you happen to be sitting.

4. Equipment and Expenses

- Meridian provides a laptop, monitor, keyboard, mouse, and headset for home use.
- Internet service is not reimbursed except where state law requires it.
- Home office furniture is not reimbursed; an ergonomic assessment is available on request.
- Return all equipment within ten business days of your last day of employment.
